We really are the luckiest!

When it comes to heterotaxy syndrome, organs can be a lot of things, but they're usually one of the 'four M's':"

TO SPLEEN OR NOT TO SPLEEN?

Splenic anomalies are found in up to 90% of people with heterotaxy.

You might think that more spleens are better, but for polysplenic patients, the variation in structure can still cause impaired splenic function.
